ABOUT ME

I am a Full-Stack Web Developer born and raised in New Zealand who has a versatile background in different divisions of various organisations. It may not seem like it from my roles, but tech is what I am truly passionate about. I made the decision to take the skills I have learned from my previous roles and transfer them over to the tech world. I am looking to start my career as a developer within an organization which can utilize my skills, provide me a sense of accomplishment, and most importantly grow. On a personal level I am a confident, professional, flexible and a highly motivated individual who is looking forward to a genuine opportunity for progression.
